Harmony of the Three Worlds

The Harmony of the Three Worlds is a concept in Taoism. The Three Worlds are the macrocosm of the universe in contrast to the microcosm of human beings. In Feng Shui, the Three Worlds are used for feng shui layout and house orientation. The Three Worlds and their Stem-Branches

There are two main explanations for the Yin and Yang and the Three Worlds. These two theories are non-mutually exclusive and the following theory is based on both explanations.

Ling Hsiang Theory

The Yin and Yang idea was first introduced in the Chinese literature called the I Ching (or I Ching Classic). Yin and Yang were said to be the two forms of energy that are intrinsic to the universe. When these two forms of energy unite, they create the Middle Kingdom. The Yang side is said to create the sky whereas the Yin side creates the Earth. This was the basis for a theory about 3 worlds and a theory about 5 elements. The idea of 3 worlds was originally based on the name of the Chinese zodiac, which is made up of twelve animals and it was based on the zodiac of twelve elemental beasts. During the 3rd century BC a collection of the I Ching began to surface that helped to systematize the idea of Three Worlds and Five Elements. Based on these ideas, people began to claim that there were 12 zodiac signs, which are in turn based on the 3rd-century BC trigrams of the I Ching. The first Nine trigrams are Taoist Yin Trigrams, whereas the 12th trigram is the Taoist Yang Trigram. The Elements of this idea are:

1. Animal: Rat, Ox, Snake, Tiger, Horse
2. Yellow and White: Heaven and Earth
3. Metal: Iron, Silver, Bronze
4. Wind and Water: Thunder, Rain
5. Earth and Wood: Wood, Stone
6. Metal and Water: Mercury, Spring
7. Wood and Earth: Stone, Wood
8. Yang and Yin: Male and Female

Qigong Based Explanation

It was later found that the I Ching can be viewed as two pieces of a yin-yang kua-yin (literally, black yin and white yin)
